I absolutely love cherry tomatoes. They are delicious! Why should you eat them? Well for one thing, they're pretty healthy. I bet you're thinking 'That's what all the grownups say about those nasty vegetables!' But get this - it's a fruit. Also, I'm a kid, I like the usual kid stuff like mac and cheese and ice cream sandwiches, so take my word.

I think they taste really good because they are the perfect mix of juicy, sweet, and sour. Also, if the tomato is ripe, it sort of explodes in your mouth with flavor. I love eating them just for a snack or in my lunch. Yum!

I usually eat them with some salt. But listen here: what's really good is tomatoes with fresh mozzarella, basil, oil, and vinegar. I'm totally addicted to it! When I was young, I thought tomatoes sounded gross, but ever since I took a bite into that shiny, red, juicy fruit I have L-O-V-E-D, LOVED it!!!

The cool thing is that they are so tiny and cute! They are super easy to grow, and you can eat them right off the plant. No fork. No napkin. No knife. No nothing! Just pop them in your mouth and say 'yum!' {Okay, that last part was optional.}

Also, they go really good with salad, in paninis, with pasta and sausage, stuffed with bacon and guacamole and much, much, MUCH more. You can look online for recipes, if you can keep from eating them fresh off the bush or from the container!

So come on, trying a little baby tomato can't kill you. You'll probably get addicted, like me! They're grown normally. Not in the ground or anything. They're on a tiny tree that has a stem instead of a trunk. So, try it. Seriously, just TRY IT!!! You'll thank me!
